Ken Grover Named as Salt Lake City School District CTE Director

(Salt Lake City) – Salt Lake City School District today announced Ken Grover has been hired as the new director for Career and Technical Education. Mr. Grover replaces Dr. Joyce Grey, who is retiring.

Mr. Grover comes to CTE after working since 1998 as an Assistant Principal at West High School. Prior to his job at West, he was a teacher at Bryant Intermediate School for three years. He also served as an adjunct instructor at Brigham Young University. Mr. Grover holds a bachelor's degree and a master's degree, both in technology education. He is currently working on his doctorate, with a focus on technology in public high schools.

“We are proud to announce Ken Grover as the new CTE Director,” said Superintendent McKell Withers. “Ken stood out among a solid field of candidates. His knowledge of technology, experience with the district, and love for the students make him a perfect fit for this position.”

About CTE

The mission of Salt Lake City School District's Career and Technical Education is to meet the career needs of all students, whether they are college bound or in need of a family wage upon graduating from high school. Career and Technical Education career pathways assist students with acquiring better understanding and greater awareness of career opportunities in their community, state and nation. After identifying career goals through classroom experiences, work-based learning and career planning, students will be better prepared for success in their adult lives.
